What is the best paint for my home interior?

The dollars spent on paint will definitely tell the quality. Cheap quality paint will cost between 12-20 dollars. Better goods you should plan on spending between 24-40 dollars a gallon. Brand is irrelevant. Sheen is up to you. Spend your money at a reputable dealer where you can get reliable service for your money spent.

“Norberg Paints”, a local provider has been in the business for generations, and has a great selection of brands, “Pittsburg Paints” as well as “Pratt and Lambert” are good choices. Lowes and Home depot paint is good too. The one thing to keep in mind is to use the same brand throughout the course of the whole job because even though they say they are the same, the bases from different brands will slightly differ causing the exact same mix to look different.

The eggshell finishes have always worked for me. Goes on easy...last longer and easy to clean if they get dirty. You don't have to buy the most expensive brand of paint out there, but remember the old saying, “you get what you pay for”, so stay away from the “cheaper” paints.

What are the best “value” paints?

Interior house painting has always been a favorite hobby and passion for most homeowners. House paints come in a myriad of colors and textures. Go for the best interior house paint to give a new and fresh look to your home. Here are some interior paint reviews to help you with your buy!

When it's time to remodel the interiors of your house, interior painting is considered to be the most cost-effective and easiest way to do so. Interior house painting comprises painting walls, ceiling, doors, furniture, etc. The type of interior house paint will differ depending on the type of surfaces. For a newly constructed house, any type of paint may be used. For refinishing painted surfaces, the paint must be chosen accordingly.

Reports and feedback from consumers are the most reliable source for knowing about the best interior paint . Factors like hiding performance, surface smoothness, resistance to stain, resistance against mildew growth, gloss alteration, resistance against exposure to ultra violet rays, etc., determine interior paint ratings.
